Q: Delete null values from array without using foreach I am new to PHP, I have a array $result[] = ['name' => 'Ajay', 'email' => null] Now i want to delete null values from this array. I am using following code but this is not working properly foreach($result as $value){ if(is_null($value['email'])){ $result[$value['name']]['email'] = ""; } } A: A much cleaner approach would be to use array_filter. You can use this instead: // filter out NULL values $result = array_filter($result); // or with your desired condition $result = array_filter($result, function($element) { return!is_null($element['email']); }); This will remove all NULL values from the array.

Many college students feel that in the competitive environment of the 21st century, the expectations of ethics are constantly evolving and becoming more demanding. They are experiencing issues of self regulation, and are feeling the need to understand how these ethics and values will help them in the future. At the same time, they are also unable to adequately cope with the digital world and the expectations it puts forth, which often is not even aware of. Modern Ethical Theory and Internet Behavior Description: This class will explore various ethical theories, and look at how they are reflected in modern-day issues of the internet. In addition, we will look at the various influences that exist in the online world, and the way that these may influence us. We will look at and discuss the various moral theories from a variety of philosophers, from Plato to Immanuel Kant, and from John Rawls to Michael Sandel. By the end of this course, we will be able to create ethical codes that will help us to navigate the world of the 21st century. Our Humble Request Description: In this course, we will be using a modified version of a module developed by the Ethics Beyond High School class for the University of Delaware. The development of this course is funded by a grant from the Hite Foundation. Our aim is to add more content to this course, in the form of the aforementioned ethics and behavior component, but also in terms of the literature component. We have discussed with our faculty supervisor, and also with our executive director, that many colleges and universities across the country, do not have a dedicated course in ethics and internet behavior, and have expressed the wish to have such a course. We are also hoping to have the same type of course available, developed for other universities that need such a course, as this course is limited to the Ethics Beyond High School module and the example module we have discussed above. To this end, our aim is to have the course available for free to any college or university that would like to run it for their students, and we will do our best to meet the basic needs and requirements for such a course. Our Online Learning Format Description: This class will be an online learning environment. Students will need to have access to the internet, and will be expected to have basic email 81e310abbf
